

President Orders Massacre of Citizens

By The Awesome Reporter Cameron Portreto

In Beijing, China on April 26, 1989 college students started to protest that China wanted democracy in Tiananmen square.

Some weeks after, the President of Russia had arrived in Beijing to tour China and all of Beijing. But the tour of Tiananmen square was canceled, because the college students had started a hunger strike. Many of the students had to go to hospitals during that time. After the president of Russia had left Beijing was declared under martial law on May 20th, 1989.

Tanks and armored personal carrier moving in to position to attack Tiananmen Square

Soldiers set up a road block to check if anybody are college student leaders that had lived.

Soon soldiers moved in, but citizens held the personnel carriers back. After trying twice to get in Tiananmen square, the soldiers were each time denied access by students and citizens.

But soon something happened that would shock the world. P.L.A. (Peoples Liberation Army) started to move in on the 3rd of June and as students and citizens ran out and tried to defy them, but this time ran people over in the street as people ran and screamed from the personal carriers.

Once the personal carriers had got past the barriers (made earlier that week) they had unloaded there people and just stood there with protesters coming towards them the P.L.A. started to open fire upon them as person after person was mowed down they ran and once the soldiers had stopped.

The people came back and yelled at them and the soldiers opened fire again. After all of the square was cleared bodies were found of soldiers that were all dead because they were shot for not opening fire upon the protesters.

After there were no living humans left alive in the square the P.L.A. hunted down leaders that were still alive and sent a bill to the persons family for the bullet that killed that person. They also shot people that ran people because they were scared of the soldiers.

After some time the news finally got out that the government had massacred over 150 thousand and got hate mail from lots of organizations across the world.
